

An aerial photograph of a coastal town. In the foreground, a large, dark, irregularly shaped lake or reservoir is surrounded by green grass and trees. A river flows from the bottom right towards the lake. The middle ground shows a dense residential and commercial area with various buildings, including a large multi-story apartment complex. To the right, there is a large, dense forest. In the background, a sandy beach runs along the edge of a large body of water, likely the Baltic Sea. The sky is a clear, deep blue.
